CHAPTER V

Colbert's Road

Colbert's Road was an early trail running from Cotton Gin Port in Monroe County, Mississippi, to Plymouth in Lowndes County, Mississippi. The road was known as Gaines' Old Road or Gaines' Trace in earlier writings, but to distinguish it from the Gaines' Trace from Muscles Shoals, Alabama, to Cotton Gin Port, Mississippi, the name Colbert's Road has been chosen. The trail was first an Indian trail of considerable usage. The rights to use this trail as a transportation road for the white man were negotiated by George Strothers Gaines, assistant and later factor at St. Stephens from 1805-1825. During the time the Indians held the land, the road was never allowed to be any other than a horse road.

The name Colbert was chosen because of the close ties the Colbert family had with the Gaines' Trace and the territory through which it passed. The original treaty for land at Muscles Shoals was made with Levi Colbert. The Colberts maintained a ferry at Muscle Shoals, at Cotton Gin Port, and at other locations where the trail turned northwestward from Cotton Gin Port toward Pontotoc.

The Gaines' Trace from Muscle Shoals to Cotton Gin Port was surveyed for the United States by General E. P. Gaines. The field notes of Doney's survey of the Chickasaw Boundary resumed his business as a merchant and continued with his usual success until his death December 3, 1881 at age 44. He was one of Clay County's foremost citizens. It was said that his memory was so wonderful that he could call nearly everyone for fifty miles around by their first names.

Captain Robinson married Margaret Kilgore, born in Chickasaw County August 22, 1840 and died August 10, 1872. She was the daughter of Dr. Ben Kilgore and Mary Dudley Kilgore. She was the mother of three children, Sidney, the oldest was educated in the city schools of West Point, and in the State University; Willie W. Jr., second child was educated at the State University, clerked until 1887 and then established himself in the merchantile business in West Point. In 1890 the firm of W. W. Robinson and Company was established, theirs being the leading grocery house at that time. Minnie, the youngest of this family, after finishing her education, taught in the schools of West Point.

Jabez Mann, born in Halifax County of Northumberland, England, married Margaret Hogg, born near the border of Scotland at Bradbury, England. They were married after reaching America in the town of Sandusky, Ohio. Margaret Hogg lived at Niagara Falls when the first engine crossed the suspension bridge at that place. Jabez Mann was a machinist by trade, and served his apprenticeship in England. He was living at Whistler, Alabama, at the time the War between the State started, and was employed in the shops of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. Mann was selected to bore the cannon for the Confederate Army. Just after the war he moved to West Point, and was placed in charge of the water pumps of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad. At the time the boilers were filled by a pumping system. Mann died on December 9th 1878. They had three sons and one daughter. Robert and James the oldest sons are deceased, the youngest Hugh lives in Kennett, Missouri. His daughter, Mrs. W. T. East, still lives in West Point, and is a highly respected and much loved citizen of the town.

David Cottrell, born near Norfolk, Virginia in 1802, was left an orphan at the age of ten months and was taken to rear by an uncle with whom he remained until fourteen years of age. Early in life he left for the (then) wilds of Tennessee to make a fortune for himself, and in that state he married Miss Elsie Hooks and lived there until 1836. He removed from Giles County, Tennessee, to Mississippi and settled in the woods bordering the Tombigbee River where Waverly now is. he was one of the pioneers of what was then Lowndes County. Columbus at that time was a mere village and the country was a vast wilderness. Cottrell opened the first plantation in the community in which he settled, but the latter part of his life was spent in West Point where he died in 1883 after a useful and well-spent career. He was respected and lived an honorable and upright life. He wife died in 1872 and was a member of the Methodist Church.

Albert P. Cottrell, their son, was born nearly Waverly in 1841. He was one of two surviving members of eight children, the older member being M. J., wife of John V. Stacy, a planter in Clay County. Three sons of David and Elsie Cottrell served in the Confederate Army: John was a member of Perrin's Regiment of Mississippi and died in 1865; James was a member of the 14th Mississippi Volunteers and died as a prisoner of war at Camp Douglas, Illinois; and Albert joined Company C, 14th Mississippi Infantry, then joined the Cavalry under General Wheeler and fought at Shiloh, the Kentucky Campaign, Murfreesboro, Chicamauga, Missionary Ridge, and the Atlanta Campaign. He was then with Wheeler on his raid through east Tennessee and to Florence, Alabama, but was with Forrest at Selma, Alabama.

Albert P. was raised in the vocation of planter and after the war farmed for one year, then in merchandising, then engaged in the livery

Prairie Settlers

On February 10, 17, and 24, 1888, three articles appeared in the Clay County Leader. The real writer's name was not given, being written under the name of Lenox, and the series was never finished. He evidently was one of the very first settlers in Clay County, and several citizens believe the writer was Captain J. D. Lynch. He wrote as follows:

"The treaty of Dancing Rabbit Creek by which the United States acquired possession of the country then inhabited by the Chickasaw Indians, opened a large and fertile region to immigration and settlement by the whites. Immigrants by the thousands soon poured into this, the Eldorado of the South.

"Leaving Decatur, in Alabama, on the first day of January 1837, I set out to cast my lot in this wild and uncultivated country. The road was lined with the wagons of immigrants, and drivers of hogs, making the journey tedious and slow. I was 22 days getting to Aberdeen, then a city of magnificent proportion, the houses being built chiefly of pine poles with the bark not removed. On the morning of January 23rd, I left Aberdeen, expecting to reach my destination in the prairie the same day, but in this I was doomed to disappointment. There was then no road, only the Indian trails. Late in the evening the wagon was mired in a creek, and, supposing I should have to stay there all night, I sent a wagon boy, who had come with my father in the previous fall, to find some place where I could obtain food for man and beasts, but, he, instead of coming back, having found comfortable quarters, put up for the night. Just before night, we got the wagon out of the mud hole, and soon reached the open prairie. Never had I seen so grand a sight. The ground was covered with snow, the deer went running and skipping in every direction over the treeless expanse, I stood and gazed in wonder and admiration at the scene, one that will remain impressed upon my memory until time with end shall be no more.

"Notwithstanding the shades of night had begun to envelop the earth, I passed on in my vain attempt to reach my destination. About midnight, the horsed hitched to the wagon, and the hogs I was driving refusing to go any further, we came to a halt in the middle of the big prairie, no fire, no food, nothing remained but to get in the wagon and keep awake, for to go to sleep was death by freezing. At light, day again dawned. I started an old man off on one of the wagon horses to find out where we were. He had not been gone long when an Indian came to us, having seen the wagon standing in the prairie. He could speak English. Soon, by the aid of his gun, we had a fire, but although hungry we had nothing to eat, and had spent a portion of that bitter cold night in one mile of the cabins I had been seeking.

"Just before sundown we reached the cabins. A negro my father had left on the place had killed a deer during the day, and as I was very hungry, and venison was a rarity, I enjoed my supper and a good night's rest on a bed, which I had not done for nearly a month. The first day I spent in my new home was Sunday, and never since have I spent one so quiet as the first one spent in the wilds of Mississippi.

"In giving a detail of the settlement of the prairies, I shall be governed by the location of the settlement and not by the time, for there are some places I do not recollect the date of settlement.

"Beginning, then, on the south, Honorable A. V. Brown and Mr. Martin, both of Tennessee, at an early date, settled the places since owned by Colonel George H. Young and Mr. Seth Pool, (as I have understood) Mr. David Cottrell on the Brown place as manager, and Mr. Stacy on the Martin place. They were both honorable and worthy citizens. After living to a good old age they passed away, honored by all who knew them. Between these and the river, were the places settled by Colonel Sims of Georgia, and Mr. William Winston of North Alabama. Colonel Sims did not live long after coming to Mississippi, but he left a son, W. H. Sims of Columbus, who is an honor to the state. Mr. Jesse Dukeminier was manager upon the Sims place for many years. Having bought a place of his own, to which he removed, Jones Williams became the manager. Mr. Winston has long since passed away. Mr. Abner Elliott was manager on his place and is now living near Siloam, and is an energetic, useful man.

"North of the Brown place Judge Daniel Wright and Mr. A. F. Young resided. Judge Wright was a lawyer of distinction, and for many years intimately connected with the political affairs of Mississippi. Mr. Young was a nice farmer, a quite, unobtrusive gentleman. Mr. Richard Sykes of Columbus purchased Mr. Young's place, and continued to have it cultivated until his death, when it passed into the hands of his children. Never was there a more energetic, industrious man than Mr. Richard Sykes. He left to his children the rich heritage of a good name.

"Next, comes Colonel George H. Young, at the mention of whose name, my youthful days are vividly brought back. Colonel Young was the counselor and friend of all who would accept. No one was ever in his company long, without being made wiser, if not better. Having been a Whig in politics all his life, when Henry Clay wrote his celebrated Raleigh letter, opposing the annexation of Texas, Colonel Young left the party and gave to Polk and to Texas his earnest, ardent support, and few men in eastern Mississippi did more effective service than did Colonel George H. Young. I have seen him wring the tears from many a hardened veteran when speaking for Polk and Texas. He has gone from amongst us, but he has left worthy representatives in his children, to whom there can be but one objection--Wat and Val have never married. I loved him when living and will ever hold his memory in reverence.

"Colonel Elisha Strong, father of Dr. Elisha, settled north of Colonel Young; W. H. Harmon being the manager of the place at the time of settlement. After his removal from the place, Mr. William Cochran, father of Mrs. Lynch and Mrs. Bowman, became the manager. He was a good man, a kind neighbor, a steadfast friend, and, the noblest work of God, and honest man. He and many of his family are quietly sleeping at Churchill.

"Colonel Elisha Strong was a high-tone, public-spirited gentleman. In his old age, he moved to Aberdeen where he died. He once had a large family, but I believe only four of his children survive him. Dr. Elisha Strong and I are the only male survivors of the early settlers now in this country. When I meet him, memory reverts to earlier and better days, when, inspired by hope and the buoyancy and elasticity of youth, we looked along down the vista of life with bright anticipations.

"Alas! How little did we dream of the stern and rugged realities we had to encounter; but such is life. Since the expulsion of Adam and Eve from Eden's rosy bowers, mutation and decay have been enstamped on all created things, and disappointment has been the common heritage of our race.

"Mr. Miles Johnson lived near Colonel Strong. He was a very eccentric man; loved to hunt and enjoy himself. He had a lovely daughter, just budding into womanhood when he moved to the country. She had many admirers, but Mr. J. B. Bennett won the prize. They were to be married on July 3, 1838. As the first settlers had very little house room, and the wedding was to be a big thing, preparation had to be made to accomodate the guests.

This information was provided in interviews with Mr. Ralph Bryan, Mr. Oscar Linbarger, Mr. Casey Bryan, Mrs. Ellis Cromwell, and Mrs. Carlisle Campbell, all of West Point, Mississippi.

Thomas G. Ivy Jr. was Clay County's first and only martyr to the cause of Cuban liberty and the defense of American principles. He died of typhoid fever contracted at Camp Cuba-Libra, early in July, 1898. His remains were brought home by his brother and comrades, and they were met at the depot by the Confederate Veterans and a large crowd of people, conveyed under military escort to the Christian Church, where touching tributes were paid to his memory by all the ministers of the city, after which interment was made in the Abbott Cemetery.

It is one of the fortunes of war that the loved ones left behind are deprived of the sad pleasure of solacing in the dying hour. But while the young soldier met death far from home, comrades stood by his side. The Clay County Spanish American War Veterans' Post is named Thomas Ivy Post, in honor of this lost comrade.

The History of the West Point Rifles

Colonel Richard M. Levy was a native of Aberdeen, Mississippi, but his citizenship was transferred to West Point in his young manhood. It is no idle compliment to say that his political acumen and indomitable energy were powerful factors in the formation and development of the new Clay County. Col. Levy organized and drilled the first military company in Clay County, the West Point Rifles, organized after the War between the States. The company, with Levy as captain, drilled in competition with the Volunteer Southrons at Vicksburg, Mississippi, on August 17, 1885, and was judged the winner and crack company of the state. This was followed by the organization of the National Guard, and Capt. Levy was elevated to the rank of Colonel. He was always interested in military affairs, and helped the West Point boys by his advice when they were organizing to enter the Spanish American War.

Col. Levy died at his home in West Point on August 4, 1926, at the age of 78 years. He was survived by his two daughters, Miss Bessie Levy and Mrs. Jetta Levy Holmes, and two sons, Richard of New York and George of Savannah, Georgia.

A letter to Miss Bessie from Mrs. Annie Wright Duncan of Vicksburg at the time of his death, said:

"Many years have passed since that gallant company of West Point Rifles under your father's command marched into our historic city, and won the laurels of championship from our Volunteer Southrons.

"The beautiful pin he presented me on behalf of his company, as their sponsor on that occasion, and the silver pitcher they later sent me on my wedding day, are among my most cherished possessions. The passing years will never efface the memory of honor and pride I shared with them on that victorious day. It is well and truly said that Colonel Levy was most valuable to the State of Mississippi. I must add that he was notably of a time of Southern chivalry now regrettably passing, when military and other friendly contests were the order of the day, enthusiastically entered into and gallantly won or lost. I feel, therefore, we have lost a chivalrous gentleman and a gallant soldier in your honored father."

A list of the names of Clay County members of this Rifle Company, which won the state championship over fifty years ago are: Richard M. Levy, Captain; J. J. Williams, 1st Lt.; George B. Coleman, 2nd Lt.; J. B. Gresham, Surgeon; S. S. Morrow, Right Guide; M. T. Baptist, Left Guide; H. L. Joiner, Corporal; E. C. Spaulding, Corporal; L. C. Hawkins, Corporal; C. L. Jordan

Sgt.; W. L. Taylor, Sgt.; George W. Cox, Drummer. Under Cpl. Joiner were Tom Keith, D. F. McCord, J. A. Stacy, A. J. Evans, Will T. Lee, N. W. Ware; under Cpl. Spalding were L. T. Randolph, John Brogan, Ben P. Capshaw, W. T. Lenoir, E. E. Maccabe, Sterling Foster. Substitutes were Sam W. Carothers, A. C. Baptist, and J. E. Willingham. Their sponsor was Miss Annie M. Wright, with Miss Mary Brooke and Miss Myra Lomas as maids of honor, and their colors were red, white, and blue. This list was provided in the West Point Leader on August 20, 1926.

The Winona Advance of August, 1885, gives a description of this drill as it was given by these gallant sons of Clay County:

"As the Southrons moved off the field, the West Point Rifles, in their bright and attractive uniforms of purple pants, with red stripes dark blue coat with red trimmings, came quickly to the front, rear open order, and inspection arms. But few commands had been executed, when it was almost generally conceded that unless they made some awkward breaks, they would be the winners. Like clockwork every movement was executed, and the manual was almost faultless. Their field maneuvering was pretty in the extreme, and the skirmish drill was simply beautiful, and had it not been for an individual error, that part of the drill would have been perfect. They completed the programme, and also got in several extra movements, among which was the wheeling by company, the men maintaining perfect time and moving around like a great lever, exactly in the correct cadence of time. The time allowed each company for the drill for 45 minutes. When they finally reported to the judges and left the field, a tremendous yell was sent up by the thousands of spectators who were present. The score stood: West Point Rifles--83.33; Volunteer Southrons--77.33; this out of a possible 100. The company got a prize of $1000.00, and the net proceeds of the gate fees, an amount we did not learn. Mr. John A. Stacy bore off the prize for individual excellency, consisting of a most exquisite $100 medal, given by Mississippi's general favority, Mr. Walter B. Barker of New York."

Captain Walter B. Barker

The many friends of Captain Walter B. Barker in Mississippi were pleased when President McKinley, recognizing his valuable services while consul at Sagua le Grande, Cuba, appointed him colonel of the Regiment of Immunes for volunteer service in the war with Spain in the Island of Cuba. Colonel Barker had charge of the distribution of food to the starvingreconcentrados, and being perfectly conversant with the situation and topography of the island, he proved to be the right man in the right place.

Consul Walter Barker of Mississippi, who was stationed at Sagua le Grande was given command of a volunteer cavalry raised under the last call. This regiment operated in Santa Clara province independently of the army of invasion. Its mission was to see that food was supplied to 40,000 destitute and starving Cubans who were in a worse condition than they were under the Weyler regime. Another purpose of the regiment was to drive the Spanish rebels and volunteers from the province westward of the American army of invasion. This regiment was organized mainly from Alabama, Mississippi, and Louisiana. Colonel Barker who was then in Washington (June 3, 1898) had the names of 1800 men ready to serve under him.

With the exception of Consul General Lee, who occupied a more important part and had greater opportunities, no one has more fairly won, in the Cuban situation, the admiration and the gratitude of the American people than Walter Barker, United States Consul at Sagua le Grande. We are proud that he is a Mississippian, and also that, like Lee, he is an ex-Confederate soldier.

this region came down Gaines' Trace or the road next south of it, Wolf Road."²⁵

Colbert's Road served a most useful purpose in the early life of the Central Mississippi Territory. Again, it could be pressed into service as a connecting road for Cotton Gin Port, Aberdeen, Waverley, Plymouth, and Columbus as a trace worthy of historical preservation. The scenic beauty along the road, the stories to be told of the past and the pleasure it could afford to the people of the present all combine to present the road as an area of interest to many groups. The documentation is adequate to warrant a strong consideration of the road as an object of restoration and use.

"I proceeded to Maj. Pitchlyn's and with his aid, arranged for transporting the goods down the Tombigbee to St. Stephens."¹⁷

In 1812 the Colbert Road was still being used for transporting goods to St. Stephens. Gaines' supply of goods arrived at Colbert's Ferry (Muscles Shoals) and were shipped to Maj. John Pitchlyn's and barges were built to ship the goods down to St. Stephens.¹⁸

During the Creek War the road was used as a communications route and a supply route. A young man by the name of Edmondson was dispatched by Gaines with a letter to Jackson concerning the Massacre at Fort Mims.¹⁹ Jackson responded by sending Col. John McKee, who met with Gaines and others at Pitchlyn's.²⁰ Tennessee volunteers on their way to New Orleans traveled the road.²¹ Pitchlyn's served as a base of operation for the expedition against the Creeks at the falls on the Black Warrior led by Chief Ocochematla.²²

Colbert's Road was used until the coming of the white man into Chickasaw Territory in 1832-1836 at which time it was incorporated into the road system of Lowndes County.²³ The Mitchel map of 1836 traced the Colbert Road running from Columbus to West Port to Plymouth to Cotton Gin Port, thence to Russellville, Alabama and Muscles Shoals. Dr. W. A. Evans wrote: "During the next seventeen years or until the Military Road reached the Tombigbee, most of the settlers who moved into

Dr. W. A. Evans wrote an article, A Pioneer Highway in Mississippi, Gaines Trace, or Gaines' Trace in Monroe County.¹⁵ One portion of the article was entitled, "Waverley and the Trace." He writes: "Doubtless, when the water was high enough to give a good depth over Lincecum Shoals, the waiting cargo boats may have come up to Waverley. If so the pack trains went there and discharged their goods." The above statement needs to be corrected as there was no evidence of a road in that direction, and most important Waverley did not exist until after 1836. Colbert Road passed approximately one mile west of Waverley.

The Colbert Road and Gaines' Trace was of tremendous importance to the settlers around St. Stephens and along the route from Cotton Gin Port, Plymouth and points south. The original intent of the road was that it would be used as a supply route for the factory (settlement) at Fort St. Stephens. George Strother Gaines was beset with many problems from the Spanish, who still held the Mobile port area when Gaines became factor at St. Stephens. The Spanish not only interfered with the trade but charged exorbitant duty to allow the goods to be transported up the Tombigbee.¹⁶

Searching for a route from the north, G. S. Gaines followed a route from Muscles Shoals in Alabama overland to Cotton Gin Port, Mississippi, on the Tombigbee, thence to "Maj. Pitchlyn's at the mouth of Octibbeha." Gaines wrote:

The records that have been used date to the period of 1831-1836, which would be twenty years after the original trace was put into use. However, since the land remained in the hands of the Chickasaws, few changes would have been made in it. The road apparently became of less importance with the development of the Jackson Military Road, Wolf Road and other roads which were opened on the east side of the Tombigbee after Monroe County was formed. But, the Colbert Road continued to be used as a means of reaching Pontotoc and the old towns at Tupelo, Mississippi.

The Indians had used Colbert's Road for many years before the white man came.¹⁰ Many old maps of the Mississippi Territory show these old Indian trails.¹¹ The upper portion of the Gaines' Trace in Alabama was used as a road to Cherokee Territory.

The Colbert Road became a major road from Plymouth northward to Pontotoc after the Treaty with the Chickasaws was signed. Roads north proliferated with great speed as the white man began to develop the territory.¹² The Colbert Road also was used as a stage coach route from Columbus to Tuscumbia, Alabama via Cotton Gin Port.¹³ Section line roads have replaced the original road, but it was possible to trace the route of Colbert's Road by riding these section roads in Clay County.¹⁴

North-South through Sections 3 and 10, Township 18, Range 7 where it crossed Tibbee Creek and joined the road to Plymouth.

The second route would have been:

North-South through Sections 23, 25, 31, Township 17, Range 7 and Sections 6, 5, and 8, Township 18, Range 8 to a point of crossing of Tibbee Creek to a road from Plymouth.⁷

The third route would have been through:

North-South Sections 22, 28, 33, Township 17, Range 7 to a ford crossing Tibbee Creek and again joining a road to Plymouth.⁸

The road markings of the Chickasaw Survey that led to Tibbee showed a Y at Section 23, Township 17, Range 7 with the road extending in a southeastwardly direction which would have joined the road to Maj. Pichlon's as noted in the field notes.⁹ All three routes were probably used as the conditions of the swamps and Tibbee Creek permitted. In times of high water the most westward route would have been used, but as Tibbee and the Tombigbee river would go down, the more eastward route would be used. Routes described in the Police Court Records for the years 1832-1836 support the above conclusions.

record, "Surveyors District of Mississippi, July 3, 1821, Meanders of Gaines' Trace, or Chickasaw Indian Boundary."¹ The notes record the route of Gaines' Trace from Muscle Shoals to Cotton Gin Port and from there down the east bank of the Tombigbee River to below Columbus, Mississippi. These notes while of great value for one following the trace in Alabama and to Cotton Gin Port supplied little of interest in connection with the Gaines' Old Road or Colbert's Road on the west bank of the Tombigbee, which was the interest of this study.

The field notes of the Coffee surveys of 1833-1834 were, however, of considerable help.² These survey maps made it possible to trace the Colbert Road to the section just east of Cotton Gin Port in Monroe County from the Plymouth Settlement.³ The combination of field notes, map markings and the tracing of the road on the general survey map showed the trace clearly in Clay County.⁴ The trace was clearly marked running north and south in the following manner:

South in Sections 22, 27, 34 in Township 16, Range 7
Sections 3, 10, 15 crossing into 14, 23, 26 crossing into 27 and 34 in Township 17, Range 7.

The marked trace ends at the point of crossing of the south side or east-west line of Section 34, Township 17, Range 7.⁵ From that point there were three possible routes used. The shortest and perhaps the last to be used would be:
